Relationship context

The reporter has lived with SK for six years and observes behaviour at home and in social settings.

Observed attention and organisation

SK commonly begins several chores, misplaces keys and headphones, forgets verbal requests, and needs shared-calendar reminders. These behaviours occur even during calm periods and have caused late fees and repeated household conflict.

Observed activity and impulse control

SK fidgets during television and meals, changes topic quickly, and frequently finishes another person's sentence. Interruption is frequent but often improves after a discreet cue. Impulsive purchases are occasional rather than constant.

Strengths and alternative explanations

SK is caring, imaginative, dependable in emergencies, and highly focused on design problems of interest. The reporter has not observed sustained elevated mood, markedly reduced need for sleep, intoxication-related patterns, or a recent abrupt onset.
